

Date

Contact:

Tina Koskoletos
41 Fox Trail Road
Sparta, NJ 07871
+1 (917) 863.5955

Greek-American Writer Launches Indie Publishing House

SPARTA, NJ—Author, Konstantinos Koskoletos, has launched an independent publishing company, Artemis Arrow Books LLC, to publish Greek and English language works focused on Greek-related stories like his memoir dealing with his tumultuous childhood during the Nazi Occupation of Greece.

The founder envisions publishing additional works by Konstantinos Koskoletos as well as other independent writers whose work would be of interest to Greeks, and Greek-Americans. His aim is to educate readers about important historical events of the past that people are unaware of and yet have a lingering impact in today's world.

In "Miseries of Occupation: A Child Survivor Remember" the author traces the mystery surrounding how his father came to be falsely accused of a crime and then executed with sixteen other Greek resistance soldiers.

"ΠΕΡΑ ΑΠ' ΤΟΥΣ ΟΡΙΖΟΝΤΕΣ" ("Beyond the Horizons") is a Greek-language title about an adventurer-historian like the ancient Greek historian Pausanias. Starting in Constantinople, the Queen of the Bosphorus, the narrator travels 25,000 miles around the globe searching for the meaning of civilization both ancient and modern. It deals with themes of political corruption, and the struggles of an immigrant to new lands. (The English language version will be available soon.)

Both of these titles have wide appeal for readers of all ages but they are especially engaging for anyone who wants to understand the historical context of Greece during and after the Second World War.

Artemis Arrow Books, LLC.

+1 (917) 863.5955

41 Fox Trail Road
Sparta, NJ 07871

Artemisarrowbooks.com
info@artemisarrowbooks.com

The founder believes strongly in publishing books that deal with aspects of human survival such as resilience and truth. Artemis Arrow Books is now accepting applications for publishing independent author's works and welcomes Greek or Greek-American writers who are passionate about these themes regardless of whether they are published or not.

About Artemis Arrow Books

Konstantinos Koskoletos graduated from the Archimedes Engineering Academy in Piraeus, Greece, with a degree in mechanical engineering. After a stint on a merchant marine ship that took him around the world, he immigrated to America where he met his future wife, raised a family and settled in Kingston, NY when he then founded and ran an engineering firm for over 30 years. At 80, he is retired from his company, and chronicling his memories of those early years.

Artemis Arrow Books, LLC is a U.S. company founded by Konstantinos Koskoletos in 2015. It was formed to bring to the American and the Greek-American market books he has written as an independent writer involving the history of Greece from World War II through the post-war period.

To Learn More:

Websites:

www.miseriesofoccupation.com

www.artemisarrowbooks.com

Facebook:

<https://www.facebook.com/K.E.Koskoletos>

Twitter:

@KKoskoletos1

LinkedIn:

<https://www.linkedin.com/in/kkoskoletos/>

Date

Pg.03
